

SES Breakfast

An Australian Public Service Commission Programme

SES

Implications of a Pandemic for Australia

These events provide participants with a forum to hear and interact with leading speakers on contemporary issues, which are relevant to their work.

Programme overview

Professor Collignon will explore why epidemics and pandemics occur and how to be prepared and control them. He will discuss the Swine influenza (the H1N1 strain) and its implications for public health.

About the speaker

Professor Peter Collignon is Director of the Infectious Diseases Unit and Microbiology Department at the Canberra Hospital and

Professor at the Canberra Clinical School, Australian National University.

A widely published infectious diseases physician and microbiologist, Peter Collignon is involved in many research projects addressing infection control.

Areas of Interest

Professor Collignon is interested in antibiotic resistance and the development of resistance through the use of antibiotics both in food, animals and people. He also enjoys teaching and research.
